

BALL CARTRIDGES TO FIGHT STRIKERS.

Situation in Waterbury Grows So Serious that Bullets Are Issued to All the Companies of Militia Sent by the Governor of Connecticut.

Citizens Fear That, with the Coming of Darkness, a Riot May Be Developed by the Car Employees, Who Have Spent the Day in Jeering Soldiers.

(Special to The Evening World.)
WATERBURY, Conn., Feb. 2.—The situation as regards the striking trolley men is growing more serious, and the authorities have decided that half-way measures will not answer. Accordingly, ball cartridges have been passed out to all the militia companies which were sent here in response to the Governor's instructions.

The usually peaceful streets of Waterbury gladden with bayonets today. On every hand are seen soldiers in long coats and slouch hats, vigilant and determined. Against them are arrayed the citizens of Waterbury with few exceptions, and the opposition, while passive is none the less sincere.

The 1,200 soldiers turned out early today. Under the direction of the Sheriff and the officers of the street railway company, squads were posted at the power-house and at points where experience has shown that outbreaks might occur. Other squads were set to patrolling the streets in the business section. The troops were kept in readiness to respond to any call at a moment's notice.

Women in Demonstrations.
Thousands of working men and women filing through the streets to the factories to-day hissed the soldiers. The demonstrations were no further. As the hours wore on the business of the city became normal, and, save for an occasional insult offered a soldier, there was nothing to remind one that the troops had been sent to Waterbury for the purpose of preventing bloodshed. Men concerned in the rioting of Saturday night were arraigned in court, but there was no excitement attending the hearing of their cases.

Night of Keen Excitement.

Waterbury, as a whole, was stunned by the announcement that troops had been ordered out, and the arrival of the soldiers late last night made the night one of keen excitement.

Obedient to orders from Gov. Chamberlain, the commanding officer of the militia exercised moderation in the distribution of his men upon their arrival and there was no offensive display of bayonets and artillery. One company of infantry was detailed for guard duty. The rest of the armed force was stationed in the local armory, at the car barn and elsewhere in the city. The night brought forth no violence of any kind.

The conservative spectators of the situation awaited to-day's developments with apprehension. The officials of the trolley company had announced their intention to operate their lines on a full schedule to-day, and promptly on time, at 5.30, this morning the day's schedule was put into operation.

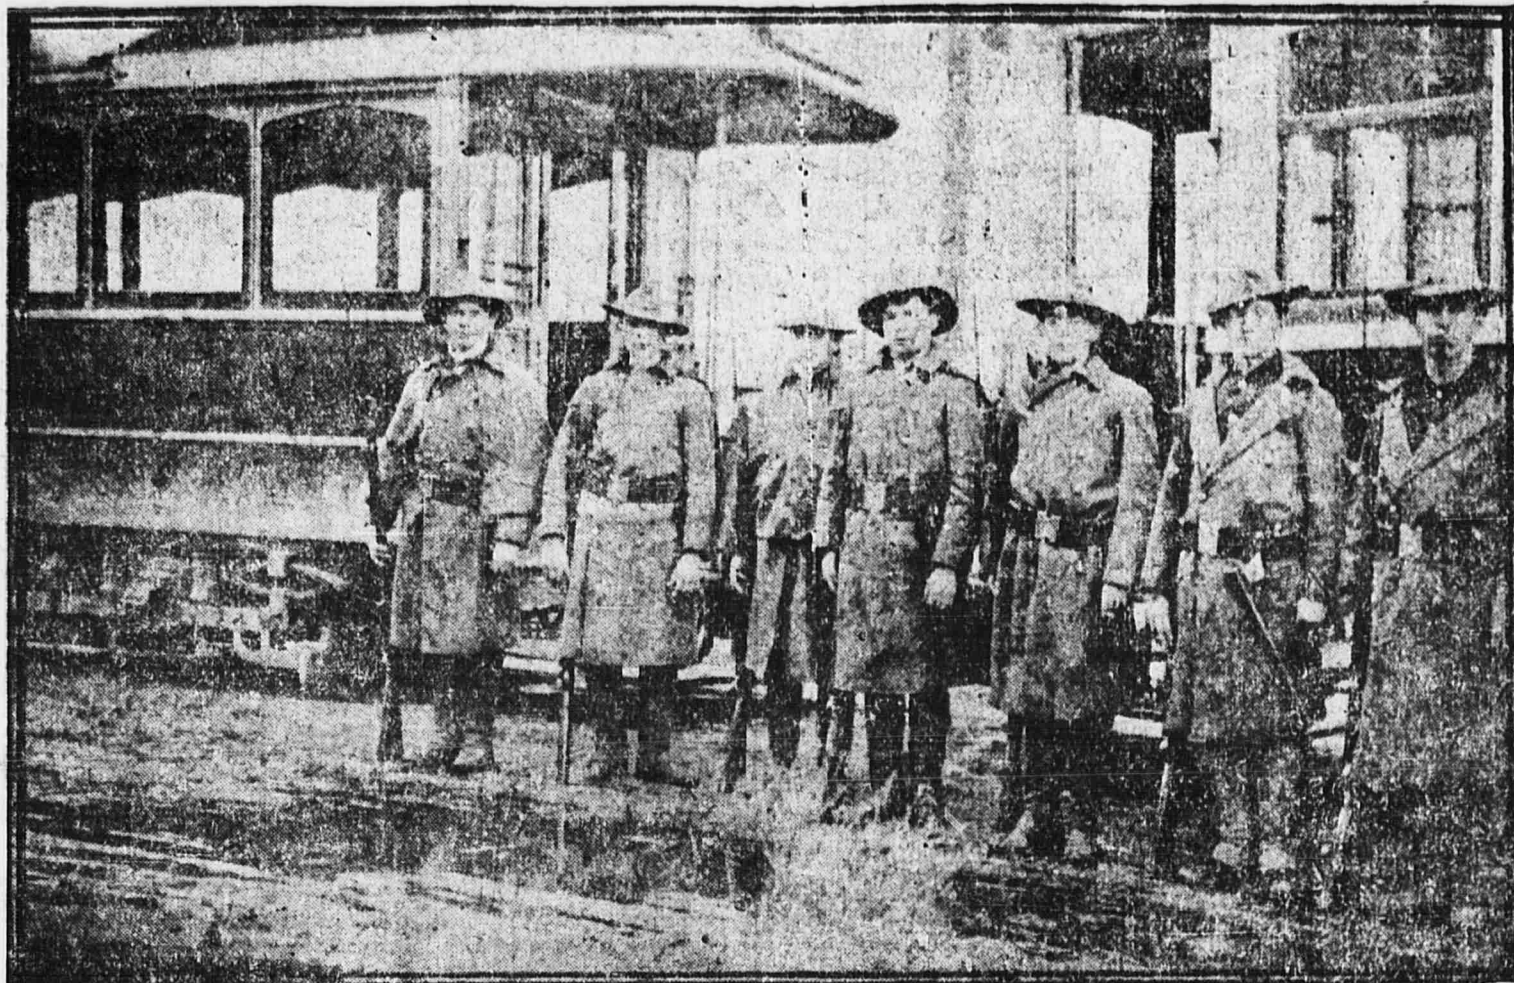

Company for Naugatuck.

A company of infantry was despatched to Naugatuck, where one of the suburban lines has its terminus and where hostile demonstrations have developed during the preceding weeks of the strike. No serious trouble was experienced during the early hours of the day, however, and aside from the tension occasioned by the presence of so large a body of militia, the streets presented an appearance extraordinary because of the unusual number of persons about.

The strikers deported themselves with considerable dignity. Indeed, they ex-

REFORM'S RECORD IN POLICE DEPARTMENT.

Capt. Cannon convicted and dismissed.
Inspector Harley forced to retire.
Capt. Price forced to retire.
Capt. Delaney forced to retire.
Capt. Chapman forced to retire.
Capt. Creedon forced to retire.
Capt. Sheehan forced to retire.
Capt. Moynihan dismissed.
Acting Captain Churchill dismissed.
Capt. Foody reprimanded.
Capt. Fitzpatrick suspended.
Capt. Devaney suspended.

Former Police Captain James Cannon, who was convicted Saturday of neglect of duty in failing to suppress a disorderly-house when he was in command of the East Twenty-second street station, was sentenced to-day to pay a fine of $250. This amount was immediately paid by George Kraus, partner of Congressman Timothy D. Sullivan in the Dewey Theatre. Mr. Kraus hastened to explain, however, that "Big Tim" knew nothing of the money, which had been raised by friends of Cannon and given to him to pay.

That Cannon escaped a prison sentence was due to his good record before he was made a captain, and to the friends of substantial character who went to the front for him. His counsel, ex-Justice Olcott, made a long plea for mercy in behalf of his client, during which tears trickled down the ex-captain's face.

He called attention to the long record of his client, to the distinction he had won and three medals he had won for brave conduct, to the character of the man who had written to the court asking for mercy and to the fact that the prisoner was a poor man, guilty at most of inefficiency and not of corruption. Judge Olcott also apologized for Cannon's outbreak against the jury when he was convicted and said it was due to hysteria caused by the strain under which he had been.

Recorder Goff complimented Cannon on his record and said that the fact that he was a poor man was a tribute to him because it was popularly supposed that the financial condition of a police captain was quite to the contrary. "I wish to impress upon you, Cannon," he continued, "that a police officer sworn to do his duty and well paid should perform it well. He should have little mercy if he fails. It is painful to see you here with such a record, but the interest of the individual must give way to the interest of the community. But the law is not vindictive. Convi-

MRS. M'AUILLIFFE IN DEADLY FEAR.

Widow of Dead Glennon Witness Ready to Break Down When Asked to Testify Against Shiels.

SHE WAS FINALLY EXCUSED.

Fearful that she too would be murdered by offended policemen, Mrs. Jane M'AUILLIFFE, widow of James M'AUILLIFFE, who was murdered in Sixth avenue after he had testified against ex-Ward Man Eddie Glennon, begged Deputy Commissioner Piper not to put her on the stand in the trial of Sergt. John H. Shiels, which was held to-day. So impressed was he by the benignity of her appeal that he excused her. The testimony of the other witnesses was taken and decision was reserved.

The unfortunate woman lived next door to the disorderly house of Laura Marat in West Thirty-third street, for failure to leave which Glennon was convicted, and Shiels is now under indictment by the Grand Jury, as well as on trial at Police Headquarters. Mrs. M'AUILLIFFE testified in the Glennon trial, to her sorrow, and when she received a subpoena to come to Police Headquarters and tell again her story against another policeman she was beside herself with fright.

Ready to Break Down.
When she entered the big building she was evidently about to break down. Assistant-District-Attorney Lord, who is prosecuting Shiels, had a talk with her and found her hysterical. She imagined that she might be assaulted by some of the detectives at any moment. She pleaded with him not to put her on the stand.

Mr. Lord notified Deputy Commissioner Piper of the woman's condition and Capt. Piper had a private talk with her. She broke down completely and wept bitterly. She told him her husband had been murdered because he had told the truth, and she was sure she would receive a subpoena to come to Police Headquarters and tell again her story against another policeman she was beside herself with fright.

As the trial went on without her and she was not put on the stand ex-District-Attorney Ridgway, counsel for Shiels, wanted to know why she hadn't been called.

"The Commissioner knows why," remarked Mr. Lord, significantly.

"She was here," admitted Piper, "but she was in no condition to testify through fear of bodily harm from the police, and I excused her."

This announcement, which was the first hint of the reason for her failure to appear, made a sensation in the room.

Testimony of Other Witnesses.
The first witness to-day was County Detective Charles Dillon, who was an agent of the Parkhurst Society at the time of the raid. He said that on July 29 he saw Shiels and Dwyer enter the house and remain there about five minutes.

When they came out he said he saw them join Supt. McClinton and Asst. Hammond, of his society, and go away. When they had left, Dillon said he entered the house and described how he was treated by the women, this evidence tending to show that it was a disorderly house.

Supt. McClinton was then called as a witness. He said that while Shiels and Dwyer were in the house he was in the McAUILLIFFE house and through an open window he heard Dwyer tell Laura Marat that the society was going to raid the house.

When McAUILLIFFE was found beaten to death last February after a night in the West Forty-seventh street station, it was openly said that he had paid the penalty for being an informer against the police.

UNION MEMBERS ALSO FOR THREE-MAN BILL.

Will Assist Senator Hudspeth to Pass It After It Is Presented to-Night at Trenton—Chief Arthur Attributes Accident at Plainfield to the Absence of a Second Man in the Cab of the Locomotive.

Members of the New Jersey Legislature from Union County, in which the Westfield accident occurred—SENATOR CROSS—I am willing to vote for any measure that in my judgment will tend to promote the safety of passengers.

ASSEMBLYMAN COYNE—I think there should be three men on every locomotive passenger or freight engine, especially on the camel-back engines.

THIRD MAN IN THE CAB BILL READY TO-NIGHT.

Through the efforts of The Evening World Senator Robert S. Hudspeth, of Hudson County, will introduce at Trenton to-night his bill to compel railroads to put a third man on all locomotives of the Western freight or mogul type drawing passenger trains, and thereby put a stop to further disasters like that at Westfield.

The third man, as already told in this paper, is to be an assistant to the engineer, to ride in the cab with him, to be able to discern signals and to stop a locomotive in case the engineer for any reason is not at his post.

Senator Hudspeth said to-day: "My bill is ready, and I will introduce it at Trenton to-night."

"I am confident it will go through. I have talked with some of the Senators and Assemblymen, and from what they say I am led to believe that I shall receive their support."

Every one of the twelve Assemblymen in Hudson County has promised to be 150 GIRLS FLEE IN PANIC FROM FIRE IN BROADWAY BUILDING.

One hundred and fifty girls employed in the workrooms on the tenth floor of Tausig & Co.'s building, Nos. 725 and 727 Broadway were thrown into a panic late to-day by an outbreak of fire. They rushed to elevator and downstairs screaming.

Several fainted. They were dragged from under the feet of the others by workmen.

The girls had remarkable escapes from being trampled to death. E. Tausig, of the firm, discovered the fire and ordered the girls to be dismissed. They were not aware of the fire until the curl of smoke entered their rooms. Damage was slight.

CANFIELD'S LAWYER BARRED FROM GRAND JURY MINUTES

Counsel for Richard Canfield and David W. Bucklin, his manager, made application this afternoon to Justice D. Cady Herrick, in the Criminal Branch of the Supreme Court, for leave to inspect the minutes of the Grand Jury for January. The application was opposed by District-Attorney Jerome and denied.

Bucklin will have to go to trial without knowing what transpired before the Grand Jury. Canfield remains in Europe, out of the jurisdiction of the authorities.

JEFF-CORBETT FIGHT WILL BE FOR $25,000.

Fort Erie Club, of Canada, Posts Five Thousand Forfeit for Twenty Round Go on June 20—Highest Purse Ever Battled for by Any Fighters in Any Country.

Ex-Champion Comes to New York to Meet Manager Herman and Is Determined in His Effort to Make Jeffries Give Him Another Chance for the Belt.

J. H. Herman, principal owner of the International Athletic Club, of Fort Erie, Canada, this afternoon came to The Evening World office to post $5,000 as forfeit money for a fight between James J. Corbett and Jim Jeffries for the heavy-weight championship of the world.

The club guarantees a purse of $25,000, the largest amount of money ever offered for a ring contest.

There is no doubt as to the club's ability to pull off the go, and the entire amount of the purse will be put up at any time the fighters wish.

June 20 is suggested by Mr. Herman as the date of the contest, and the agreement calls for a twenty-round go.

Jeffries has never before had a chance to fight for such a sum of money, and the conditions are all in his favor. Why he should talk at all of a finish fight is not clear, for he has never yet fought in anything except a limited-round go, and he won the championship with a limit.

He has yet to fight for a side bet, and there is no reason why he should ask Corbett to bet him $10,000 when the ex-champion could get 3 to 1 for his money.

CORBETT ANXIOUS FOR ANOTHER CHANCE.

Corbett is ready and anxious to fight the "Boilermaker" and the "go" could not be pulled off too soon to suit him. There is no fake about Corbett's desire to go into the ring, for he spends almost his entire time training and is right now in the best shape he has ever been in his life.

The ex-champion is in such perfect physical condition that few of his friends would believe him the same man that they saw a year ago. His abdominal muscles are as hard as iron and he is bigger, more solid and quicker in every way.

A chance to rehabilitate himself is the dream of Corbett's life, and there is no doubt that he is better able to put up a winning fight now than ever before.

Corbett arrived in New York Sunday, and instead of looking up old companions went to a gymnasium, where he worked for three hours, just as he has done every day for months. This morning he was out of bed at 7, and after a light breakfast he was once more at work at his training.

The ex-champion will appear in a monologue at a Twenty-third street theatre all week. He is touring the country at the head of his own show, but left the company this week when he had an opportunity to meet Herman here and talk over the prospects of a fight. This partial lay-off means several hundred dollars to Corbett, and shows again how anxious he is to force Jeffries to meet him.

"JEFFRIES HAS GOT TO FIGHT ME."

"Jeffries simply cannot avoid meeting me this time," said he this afternoon. "The offer of the Fort Erie Club is too big for him to turn down. He thinks he can lick me, and if he can he will make a lot of money, for I won't split the purse with him like he has had to do in all of his fights. I will sign an agreement for the winner to take 75 per cent. of the purse, that ought to satisfy him. If I lose I don't want any of the money. The 25 per cent. would just about cover my expenses."

"What I want is a chance to fight him under any old conditions. I have $2,500 forfeit money up with Al Smith already, and I will make it $5,000 any time he wants to put up a like amount. His talk about betting me $10,000 on the side is nonsense, for he could take that money and lay it off so as to be ahead any way, for he will be an odds-on favorite in the betting should we get together."

"I do not see how he can avoid meeting me. He must fight some one, and there is no one who has a better right than me to look for a chance. He has whipped all of the other heavy weights two times each, and there is no one left for him to take on."

"I THINK I CAN WHIP HIM NOW."

"If he means to fight at all he must fight now. Every thing he wants he can have, and if he does not accept the chance I will claim the championship, as I will have a right to."

"What excuse can he have for not meeting me? A champion must defend the title, and if he does not do so he is not the champion, is he?"

"I feel that I can whip him now, and I think he feels it, too. I am going to force him to get into the ring with me, if I can, and I do not see why he should turn down this offer of the International Athletic Club. Their deposit of $5,000 shows that they mean business, and no matter how long he would hold off no one would offer a larger sum."

"There has never been but one fight for $25,000 or more—the one between Sullivan and myself—and even Jeffries cannot turn up his nose at that amount."

"Any time will suit me. I am ready to go on to-morrow. I believe I will get a chance at the title this time. Jeffries will either have to fight or get out. I want him to fight."

It looks as though Corbett has the situation summed up pretty well. There does not seem to be any way that Jeffries can gracefully dodge the issue, and the articles of agreement are likely to be signed for a championship go within a very short time at the office of The Evening World.

SHOT HIMSELF BESIDE HIS WIFE

George Cunard, Crazy by Religion, Put a Bullet in His Head as She and Year-Old Baby Slept.

THIRD EFFORT TO END LIFE.

George Cunard, a religious extremist, whose mind is believed to have become unbalanced from excessive fervor, shot himself while in bed to-day with his wife and one-year-old child in their home, at No. 674 Eighth avenue. He is in Roosevelt Hospital, where the doctors say he may die.

Until last fall Cunard, who is thirty-three years old, was a foreman for the McCue Trust and Aving Company, No. 106 West Thirty-seventh street.

On Thanksgiving Day he attended church the first time since he was a boy.

He became intensely religious from that time. He prayed incessantly, prayed at home and at work, and forgot to work while he prayed.

His employers suspended him several times, but as they could not make him give his work preference to his prayers, they discharged him.

By working hard for neighbors Mrs. Cunard was able to provide a Christmas tree for her children. Mrs. Cunard, 34 years old, and living, one year old. When they were dancing about the tree they smelled gas and the children found their father in the front room with sheets stuffed in the door and window cracks and a rubber tube extending from the gas to his mouth.

Mrs. Cunard rescued him that time, but on New Year's day, while he was praying with unusual zeal Cunard shot a hole in the parlor table and announced that he was just trying the weapon before sending a bullet into himself. The pistol was taken from him.

Since then he has been praying harder than usual. To his prayers he has added the habit of addressing notes to God and to Jesus Christ and either mailing them or placing them on his clothes, expecting angels to take the notes from him.

KING EDWARD ILL WITH COLD.

His Indisposition Suddenly Announced as He Was About to Start on Social Visit, Which Had to Be Cancelled.

FEVER WITH THE ATTACK.

LONDON, Feb. 2.—King Edward and Queen Alexandra were to have gone on a visit to the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire, at Chatsworth, this afternoon, but their departure was postponed at the last minute, for the reason that the King was suffering from a feverish cold.

The King was planting trees at noon some distance from Windsor Castle and appeared then to be in excellent health and spirits.

Shortly after the King's return to the Castle a telegram was received from the Duke of Devonshire, saying that King Edward had a cold and that Sir Francis Laking, the King's physician, considered it unsafe for him to travel to-day.

The royal train has been ordered to be in readiness to-morrow, in the hope that the King will be able to carry out his intention of visiting the Duke and Duchess of Devonshire. The Prince and Princess of Wales and Prince and Princess Charles of Denmark left Windsor for Sandringham during the course of the afternoon.
